For Grown-Ups: How to Use These Worksheets

One page at a time, from late kindergarten to second grade. Each activity has two pages.

Why use it

A fact family is three numbers that make four facts: 3, 5 and 8 give 3 + 5 = 8, 5 + 3 = 8, 8 – 3 = 5 and 8 – 5 = 3. Schools teach it because it shows that subtraction is addition backwards, so a child who knows 3 + 5 also knows 8 – 5.

What it is good for

- Writing all four facts from the three numbers in the roof.
- Families within 5, then within 10, then within 20.
- Completing a family from one fact, as first grade asks.

How to use it

1. On a blank house, split 5 crackers into 3 and 2, and write 5, 3 and 2 in the roof.
2. Point out the whole at the peak. It is the biggest number.
3. Write the two additions, then the two subtractions.
4. In every subtraction, the whole comes first: 8 – 3, never 3 – 8.
5. To complete a family, copy the given fact's three numbers into the roof, then write the other facts.
6. Check with the answer key. The facts may be in any order.

> Try saying: “Which number is the whole? Start the subtraction with it. What is left when you take 3 away?”

Tip: If your child writes 3 – 8, ask which number is the biggest: the whole starts a subtraction.
